

Abstract

It is a joining auxiliary agent for a polyamide resin with which a predetermined joining face of a polyamide resin molded article is coated to ensure the joining strength between the predetermined joining face and another polyamide resin when they are joined together, and has a composition containing a compound (1), which cleaves a hydrogen bond in the polyamide resin molded article while assisting the dissolution of the polyamide resin, in an organic solvent capable of dissolving the polyamide resin.